AUCKLAND STUDY GROUP MEETING
Tuesday 26th November 2024 at 7.00pm

PRESENTER:

DR ANDREW LIAW

TOPIC:

Essentials in recreating pink aesthetics and function around teeth and implants: key strategies and techniques

Synopsis:

This lecture aims to discuss the biology of gingival recession around teeth, which builds a decision framework for predictable intervention. These concepts will be expanded into the context of dental implantology to optimise pink aesthetics in the anterior zone.

Learning Outcomes:

1. Understand the aetiological risk factors predisposing to gingival recession.
2. Pre-intervention recognition of anatomical features that influence root coverage predictability.
3. Application of soft tissue techniques for implants in the anterior aesthetic zone.

Dr. Liaw is a specialist periodontist at the Institute of Dental Implants and Periodontics. He graduated with First Class Honors at James Cook University and completing his specialist training at the University of Queensland, Australia.

He has published widely in prestigious journals in the field of epigenetics and clinical periodontics.

Clinically, Dr Liaw has a special interest in soft tissue surgery, aiming to optimise function and restore the natural aesthetics of teeth and implants.
